

Chic, Stylish Fashion Bargains – All For a Good Cause

Hot on the heels of Fashion Week, a stunning display of chic and glamour will once again be unveiled: this time at Peter Pan's bi-annual three-day sale of selected designer and classic vintage clothing in support of Barnardos, Australia's leading children's charity.

Peter Pan is Barnardos' tireless fundraising committee, and next week's Winter Sale offers bargain hunters the opportunity to snap up vintage clothing and designer women's wear.

"The quality of the clothing is exceptional," says Beth Chambers, Winter Sale organiser and Volunteer Peter Pan Committee member. "Almost every shopper buys something, and all our customers know that the money they are spending will help Barnardos assist Australian children dealing with the tragic effects of neglect and abuse."

The now famous Peter Pan sales have been running since 1941 and are now a 'not to be missed' item on the fashion calendar for those in the know.

This year's winter collection includes everything the astute buyer might need to vamp up their wardrobe for the cooler months, including coats, evening wear, knit wear, jackets and casual wear. There are also an extensive range of accessories such as shoes, belts and scarves.

"We even have some beautiful hats for those wishing to get in early for the spring racing carnival," smiles Beth Chambers.

In addition to the many vintage items, buyers can also pick up high quality garments second-hand items from designers such as Chanel, Lanvin, Armani, Hermes, Jaeger, Burberry, Gucci as well as iconic Australian designers Collette Dinnigan and Lisa Ho.

"After 65 years of successful sales for charity, we think we have a great formula! Peter Pan was recycling clothing long before it became fashionable," says Beth Chambers. "Peter Pan even coined the phrase Opportunity Shop, which is now part of Australian jargon!"
